Preface.

¶ The numerous years of constant personal contact with my pupils; the close and studious observations I made of their requisites; the various and diverse inquiries by them made; the many years that I devoted, both, as designer and instructor; each and all of these facts have prompted and enabled me to produce this volume.

¶ The vast amount of experience gained has taught me to formulate this publication in a manner most comprehensive to my pupils. That this book shall be both an aid and a guide to those that make themselves familiar with its contents is my aim.

¶ It is with these sincere motives in view that the following work is presented to the public.
